COMMENTARY ON SECTIONS

Part 13 – Review of Compulsory Supervision Order

Requirement for review

Section 132 – Right of child or relevant person to require review

193. This section allows the child and relevant person to require a review of the compulsory supervision order by giving notice to the Principal Reporter. The review may not take place until three months after the order being made, continued or varied although the notice may be given before that date. Subsection (5) enables the Scottish Ministers to make regulations shortening the period before a review can take place in relation to a compulsory supervision order that includes a secure accommodation authorisation.
