

Children (Equal Protection from Assault) (Scotland) Act 2019

2019 asp 16

1 Abolition of defence of reasonable chastisement

- (1) The rule of law, that the physical punishment of a child in the exercise of a parental right or a right derived from having charge or care of the child is justifiable and is therefore not an assault, ceases to have effect.
- (2) Section 51 (physical punishment of children) of the Criminal Justice (Scotland) Act 2003 is repealed.
