- (d) after subsection (5) insert—

“(5A) If there is a relevant inward transfer during the pension input period, then—

- (a) if condition B is met, and there has been an increase in the annual rate of the pension or an increase in the amount of the lump sum to which the individual would be entitled under the arrangement, as a consequence (whether direct or indirect) of the relevant inward transfer, the amount of that increase is to be subtracted from PE or LSE, so far as that amount is reflected in the increase in the value of benefits mentioned in paragraph (b) of condition B;
- (b) if condition B is not met but the annual rate of the pension, or the amount of the lump sum, to which the individual would be entitled under the arrangement has been increased by reason of the relevant inward transfer, the amount of that increase is to be subtracted from PE or LSE.

Condition B is that-

- (a) the relevant inward transfer (“the transfer”) took place within a block transfer,
  - (b) the value of the benefits to be paid to or in respect of the individual under the arrangement has been increased, and the value of the benefits to be paid to or in respect of the individual under the pension scheme mentioned in subsection (5) has been reduced, as a consequence (whether direct or indirect) of the transfer,
  - (c) the amount of that increase in value is equal (or virtually equal) to the amount of that reduction, and
  - (d) the transfer is not part of an arrangement the main purpose (or one of the main purposes) of which is the avoidance of tax.
- (5B) For the purposes of Condition A in subsection (4A) and Condition B in subsection (5A)—
- (a) normal actuarial practice must be used when determining and comparing the amount of a reduction, and the amount of an increase, in the value of benefits to be paid to or in respect of the individual,

- (b) the amount of a reduction or increase in the value of benefits to be paid to or in respect of the individual under the arrangement is the difference between the value of those benefits under that arrangement immediately before the transfer and immediately after the transfer, and
  - (c) the amount of an increase or reduction in the value of benefits to be paid to or in respect of an individual under a pension scheme is the difference between the value of those benefits under that pension scheme immediately before and immediately after the transfer.
- (5C) In subsections (4A) and (5A)—
- “block transfer” means a transfer which involves the transfer in a single transaction of all the sums or assets held for the purposes of, or representing accrued rights under, the arrangements under a pension scheme which relate to the individual and at least one other member of that pension scheme so as to become held for the purposes of, or to represent rights under, any pension scheme.”;
- (e) after subsection (5C) (as inserted by sub-paragraph (d)) insert—
    - “(5D) For the purposes of subsections (4A) and (5A), the annual rate of the pension, or the amount of the lump sum, to which the individual would be entitled under the arrangement has been reduced or increased, as the case may be, “by reason of” a transfer of sums or assets only where that reduction or increase is solely attributable to the value of those sums or assets.”; and
  - (f) in subsection (8D) for “in a case where” to the end substitute—
    - “in a case where—
      - (a) the individual becomes actually entitled to all of the individual’s benefits under the pension scheme or benefit crystallisation event 5, 5A or 5B occurs in relation to the individual and the pension scheme, and
      - (b) the adjustment takes place after the individual becomes so entitled or the benefit crystallisation event occurs.”.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order makes amendments to provisions about the annual allowance charge contained in Part 4 of the Finance Act 2004 (c. 12) (“the Act”).

Articles 1 to 9 provide for when this Order comes into force and the times and events from which provisions of this Order take effect. The amendments mentioned in articles 2 and 6 apply in relation to past times. When read with article 3 they do not increase any person’s liability to tax. This accords with section 282(A1) of the Act which provides that an Order that is made under Part 4 of the Act (which includes section 238A under which this Order is made) may include provision having effect in relation to times before the Order is made, if that provision does not increase any person’s liability to tax.

Article 11 inserts a new section into the Act. It concerns where a first pension input period (“PIP”) ends in tax year 2011-12, 2012-13 or 2013-14. The PIP is the time period used for calculating the annual allowance charge. The new section has the effect that unused annual allowance is to be available to be carried forward for those tax years. This applies in relation to so called defined benefits, cash balance and some hybrid pension arrangements.

Articles 12 and 15 make amendments which affect the calculation of the “pension input amount” (“PIA”). They apply to a cash balance or defined benefits pension arrangement. PIA is the increase in the value of the individual’s pension rights which is relevant for determining the annual allowance charge. When calculating the PIA for the first PIP, the opening balance is based on benefits that are available under the arrangement just before the PIP (see articles 12(a) and 15(a)). A “deferred member” – a member who only has accrued rights - will not stop being a deferred member merely because additional rights are granted to that member under a new pension scheme in respect of funds transferred from their old pension scheme. That transfer must however meet conditions in new sections 230(5BC) and 234(5BD)). In addition, articles 12 and 15 make provision for more situations where a deferred member’s PIA will be nil.

Articles 13 and 16 make amendments about a “block transfer”, meaning a transfer between schemes or arrangements in respect of at least two persons. Those amendments apply where a reduction in the value of an individual’s benefits in the transferring scheme is equal to an increase in the value of the individual’s benefits in the receiving scheme. The reduction and increase must be in consequence of the transfer. The Order specifies what is then to be added in the transferring scheme, and subtracted in the receiving scheme, for PIA purposes. Articles 13 and 16 also deal with individual transfers by setting out definitions which ensure that only amounts which are solely attributable to the value of transferred sums or assets will count for PIA purposes (see new sections 232(6D) and 236(5D)).

Article 13(f) makes amendments in relation to a cash balance arrangement. The amendments determine what is to be added to the closing balance for PIA purposes. They apply where the individual becomes entitled to a pension because of a relevant “benefit crystallisation event” (“BCE”) such as retirement. Articles 13(g) and 16(f) make amendments relating to an adjustment to the individual’s pension rights where the individual has given notice under section 237B of the Act so that the scheme and the individual are jointly liable to pay that individual’s annual allowance charge (“scheme pays notice”). The amendment applies to cash balance and defined benefits arrangements. It ensures that, if the adjustment occurs before the individual takes all their benefits (or if BCE 5, 5A or 5B occurs), an amount is to be added to the closing balance for PIA purposes.

Article 14 amends section 233 of the Act in relation to a “refund of excess contributions lump sum” (see paragraph 6 of Schedule 29 to the Act). That amendment ensures that the sum will not be included in PIA. It applies to a money purchase arrangement other than a cash balance arrangement. Article 17(a) makes amendments which prevent an individual giving a scheme pays notice after that individual has taken all their pension benefits (or BCE 5, 5A or 5B occurs). Article 17(b) ensures that an individual can give a scheme pays notice even where there is a transfer of all the individual’s sums or assets into that scheme during a PIP.
