8.—(1) A court shall not after the coming into operation of this Article pass a recorded sentence of imprisonment on any person or make a recorded order for detention in a young offenders centre in relation to any person.

(2) Paragraph (3) applies to a case where—

- (a) a court has before the coming into operation of this Article passed a recorded sentence of imprisonment on any person or made a recorded order for detention in a young offenders centre in relation to any person; and
- (b) the court has not ordered that the sentence or order take effect.

(3) In a case to which this paragraph applies—

- (a) the recorded sentence of imprisonment or order for detention shall, subject to the following provisions of this Article, have effect as if it were a suspended sentence of imprisonment or order for detention;
- (b) sections 18(5), 19, 20 and 21 of the Act of 1968 shall apply to the recorded sentence or order for detention as if it were a suspended sentence or order for detention passed or made at the same time and for the same term as the recorded sentence under—

(5) The references in section 26(2) and (3) of the Act of 1968 to a suspended sentence shall not be construed as including references to a recorded sentence which by virtue of this Article has effect as if it were a suspended sentence.

(6) Any statutory provision (other than the Act of 1968) which applies to a suspended sentence shall, with such modifications as are appropriate in consequence of this Article, apply to a sentence which by virtue of this Article has effect as if it were a suspended sentence.

 - (ii) in other cases, than 240.”.

Deferment of sentence

11.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the Crown Court or a magistrates' court may defer passing sentence on an offender for the purpose of enabling the court to have regard, in determining his sentence, to his conduct after conviction (including, where appropriate, the making by him of reparation for his offence) or to any change in his circumstances.

(2) Any deferment under this Article shall be until such date as may be specified by the court, not being more than six months after the date on which the deferment is announced by the court; and where the passing of sentence has been deferred under this Article it shall not be further deferred thereunder.

(3) The power conferred by this Article shall be exercisable only if the offender consents and the court is satisfied, having regard to the nature of the offence and the character and circumstances of the offender, that it would be in the interests of justice to exercise the power.

(4) A court which under this Article has deferred passing sentence on an offender may pass sentence on him before the expiration of the period of deferment if during that period he is convicted in Northern Ireland of any offence.

(5) If an offender on whom a court has under this Article deferred passing sentence in respect of one or more offences is during the period of deferment convicted in Northern Ireland of any offence (“the subsequent offence”), then, without prejudice to paragraph (4) but subject to paragraph (6), the court which (whether during that period or not) passes sentence on him for the subsequent offence may also, if this has not already been done, pass sentence on him for the first-mentioned offence or offences.

(6) The power conferred by paragraph (5) shall not be exercised by a magistrates' court if the court which deferred passing sentence was the Crown Court; and the Crown Court, in exercising that power in a case in which the court which deferred passing sentence was a magistrates' court, shall not pass any sentence which could not have been passed by a magistrates' court in exercising it.

(7) A court which under this Article has deferred passing sentence on an offender may issue a summons requiring him to appear before the court, or may issue a warrant for his arrest where—

- (a) the court proposes to sentence him, whether on the date originally specified by the court or by virtue of paragraph (4) before that date; or
- (b) the offender does not appear on the date so specified.

(8) In deferring the passing of sentence under this Article a magistrates' court shall be regarded as exercising the power of adjourning the trial which is conferred by Article 161(1) of the Magistrates' Courts (Northern Ireland) Order 1981⁽¹¹⁾ and accordingly Articles 23 and 25(3) of that Order (non-appearance of the accused) apply (without prejudice to paragraph (7)) if the offender does not appear on the date specified in pursuance of paragraph (2).

(9) A court which under this Article defers passing sentence on an offender shall not on the same occasion remand him.

(10) Nothing in this Article shall affect the power of the Crown Court to bind over an offender to come up for judgment when called upon or the power of any court to defer passing sentence for any purpose for which it may lawfully do so apart from this Article.

(11) The power of a court under this Article to pass sentence on an offender in a case where the passing of sentence has been deferred thereunder includes power to deal with him in any way in which the court which deferred passing sentence could have dealt with him.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order makes miscellaneous amendments to the powers of courts to deal with offenders. It enables probation orders to require offenders to participate in certain activities or to attend at certain places or day centres. It reduces from three years to two the maximum term of training school orders and increases from three years to four years the maximum term of detention in a young offenders centre. It provides for persons aged between 17 and 21 to be remanded or committed to custody in a young offenders centre. The Order also reduces from seventeen years to sixteen years the minimum age at which a community service order may be made, abolishes recorded sentences, increases the maximum term of imprisonment for certain offences and amends the law relating to attendance centre orders, suspended sentences, deferred sentences and the trial of juvenile offenders.
