EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations.)

These regulations amend the Building Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1994 (“the principal regulations”). They come into operation on 1st January 1998.

The principal regulations require plans of any proposed building work to be submitted to the district council for approval before the work has commenced and for the work to be inspected during construction. These regulations permit a district council to issue a certificate in relation to any work which complies with the substantive requirements of the principal regulations or its predecessors but which has been completed without the deposit of plans or notices as required by those regulations. Such a certificate will constitute evidence (but not conclusive evidence) that the substantive requirements of the relevant building regulations have been complied with (Regulations 3(1) and 3(4)).

These regulations also permit a person proposing to carry out building work to a dwelling to commence that work without the submission of detailed plans, provided he has submitted to the district council a Building Notice which gives details of the proposed work (Regulation 3(3)).
