EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations amend the Foyle Area and Carlingford Area (Angling) Regulations 2001 by:

- (a) Omitting the definition of “salmonids” thus permitting a wider range of conservation measures for individual species of fish (regulation 3)
- (b) Providing that on any one day during the period 1st March to 31st May only 1 salmon or sea trout over 40 cm in length may be taken by rod and line and retained (regulation 4)
- (c) Providing that on any one day during the period 1st June to 31st October only 2 salmon or sea trout over 40cm in length may be taken by rod and line and retained (regulation 4)
- (d) Providing that on any one day during the period 1st March to 31st October only 4 brown trout or sea trout of 40 cm or less in length may be taken by rod and line and retained (regulation 4)
- (e) Providing that in any calendar year only 25 fish, being either salmon or sea trout over 40cm in length, or a combination of both, may be taken by rod and line and retained (regulation 4)
- (f) Providing that any arctic charr taken by rod and line shall not be retained (regulation 4)
- (g) Providing for the catch and release of salmon, sea trout and brown trout (regulation 4)
- (h) Providing that where the appropriate numbers of salmon, sea trout or brown trout which may be taken by rod and line have been attained that only a single barbless hook is permitted while angling and the use of earthworms as bait is prohibited (regulation 4)
- (i) Restrictions on the number and size of pike which may be taken by rod and line and retained (regulation 4)
- (j) Providing that when a person is unsuccessful in returning a salmon or sea trout alive, and when appropriate to tag, such fish shall be notified to, and surrendered to the Loughs Agency (regulation 5)
- (k) Providing that the Loughs Agency shall replace a tag to a person who has surrendered a salmon or sea trout with the appropriate tag.
