

Sex Discrimination Act 1975

1975 CHAPTER 65

PART VII

ENFORCEMENT

General

62 No further sanctions for breach of Act

- (1) A contravention of this Act shall incur as such no sanction, whether civil or criminal, except to the extent (if any) expressly provided by this Act.
- (2) In subsection (1) "sanction" includes the granting of an injunction or declaration, but does not include the making of an order of certiorari, mandamus or prohibition.
- (3) Subsection (2) does not affect the remedies available under section 66(2), notwithstanding that subsection (2) would prevent those remedies being obtainable in the High Court.
- (4) In relation to Scotland in subsection (1) "sanction" includes the granting of an interdict or of a declarator or a decree ad factum praestandum, but otherwise nothing in this Act shall affect any right to bring any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, which might have been brought if this Act had not been passed.