EXPLANATORY NOTE

These regulations bring up to date the National Health Service (Superannuation) (England and Scotland) Regulations, 1948, which provide for interchangeability of service with preservation of superannuation rights between the English and Scottish Health Services, and between either of those Services and the Local Government Service and the Teaching Service in Great Britain. In substance the provisions for interchange remain the same: the amendments made by these amending regulations are purely consequential on changes in local government superannuation law and on changes in the regulations (now consolidated in the National Health Service (Superannuation) Regulations, 1955 and the National Health Service (Superannuation) (Scotland) Regulations, 1955) made under section 67 of the National Health Service Act, 1946, and section 66 of the National Health Service (Scotland) Act, 1947.

Regulations 1, 2 and 3 provide for the title, date of coming into operation and definition of terms used in the regulations.

Regulations 4 and 5 insert in regulations 2 and 3 of the principal regulations (which provide for the superannuation rights of persons entering the Scottish Health Service after leaving employment in the English Health Service, English Local Government Service or English Teaching Service and for the superannuation rights of persons entering the English Health Service after leaving employment in the Scottish Health Service, Scottish Local Government Service or Scottish Teaching Service) a reference to “the English rules” (i.e. the Superannuation (Local Government and National Health Service) Interchange Rules, 1955) and “the Scottish rules” (i.e. the Superannuation (Local Government and National Health Service) Interchange (Scotland) Rules, 1955) which provide for the payment of transfer values in respect of persons leaving local government employment and entering National Health Service employment and for the reckoning in relation to local government employment of previous service in the National Health Service in respect of persons who enter local government employment after leaving National Health Service employment.

Similarly, regulations 6 and 7 amend regulations 4 and 5 of the principal regulations by including in the case of a person transferring from Scottish Health Service employment to English local government employment a reference to the English rules, or in the case of a person transferring from English Health Service employment to Scottish local government employment a reference to the Scottish rules; and regulations 8 and 9 amend regulations 6 and 7 of the principal regulations by substituting a reference to the English rules dealing with transfer values for the reference to the English regulations and a reference to the Scottish rules dealing with transfer values for the reference to the Scottish regulations.

Regulation 10 substitutes references to the provisions of the National Health Service (Superannuation) Regulations, 1955, and the National Health Service (Superannuation) (Scotland) Regulations, 1955, for references to the corresponding provisions of the regulations in force when the principal regulations were made.
