(2) (a) No supplement shall be payable to or in respect of a dependent pensioner being a child of the officer in respect of whose service the pension is payable when, if the pension were a children's pension as described in section 52 of the Superannuation Act 1965(a), such pension would not be payable solely by reason of the fact that the dependent pensioner was not in his period of childhood and full-time education as specified in section 84 of the said Act.

(b) For the purposes of this paragraph a child of the officer means a child, stepchild, illegitimate child or adopted child of the officer in respect of whose service the pension is payable or of a wife of such officer.

PART V

PERSONS IN RECEIPT OF MORE THAN ONE PENSION

11.—(1) In this regulation the expression “corresponding pension” means:—

- (a) any pension which may be increased under Section 1 of the Act of 1969;
- (b) a service pension as defined in Schedule 2 of the Act of 1962 which would be taken into account in accordance with the provisions of that Schedule for the purpose of determining the authorised increase of a relevant pension;
- (c) any pension granted in respect of service under the Central Office of the Overseas Audit Department;
- (d) any other pension in respect of which an increase is payable under any scheme (wherever in force and whether or not authorised by or under any enactment) which has been determined by the Minister for the Civil Service to be similar to the provisions of the Acts of 1944, 1952, 1956, 1962, 1965 or 1969.

(2)—(a) Where a person is in receipt of more than one pension in respect of service under any of the Governments of the overseas territories specified in Schedule 1 to these Regulations:

- (i) the supplements payable shall not in the aggregate exceed the amount which would be payable if he were in receipt of a single basic pension at a rate equal to the aggregate of his basic pensions and beginning at the time when the earliest of them began, together with an overseas increase at a rate equal to the aggregate of the overseas increases awarded in respect of those pensions: Provided that for the purposes of determining the amounts which would be payable under any of the Acts of 1920 to 1969 in respect of the aforesaid single basic pension the aggregate of his basic pensions shall not include any basic pension which began at a time when, if it were the only basic pension eligible for benefit under these Regulations, it would not have attracted any increase under that Act; and
- (ii) where the aggregate of the supplements in respect of each of his basic pensions as ascertained apart from this paragraph would exceed the maximum amount authorised under sub-paragraph (a)(i) of this paragraph the supplement payable in the case of each of such pensions shall be of such amount as, when aggregated with the overseas increase paid in respect of that pension, shall bear the same proportion to the aggregate increases which would be payable under the Pensions (Increase) Acts 1920 to 1969 in respect of the aggregate basic pensions as the basic pension bears to such aggregate: Provided that where the aggregate of the supplements so determined in respect of all the basic pensions, whether or not such pensions attract benefit under these Regulations, exceeds the maximum amount payable under the provisions of sub-paragraph (a)(i) of this paragraph each such supplement shall be reduced by an amount bearing the same proportion to that supplement as the excess bears to that aggregate.

(b) In this paragraph any reference to the basic pensions of a person shall be construed as including a reference to any pension in respect of service under any of the Governments of the overseas territories specified in Schedule 1 to these Regulations, whether or not those pensions are overseas pensions as described in Schedule 3 to the Act of 1962 and whether or not they are eligible for benefit under these Regulations.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this regulation, where a person who is in receipt of an overseas pension is also in receipt of a corresponding pension or pensions, paragraph (2) of this regulation shall apply for the purpose of determining the supplement payable in respect of the overseas pension as if any corresponding pension was a pension in respect of service under the Government of an overseas territory specified in Schedule 1 to these Regulations:

Provided that—

(a) no account shall be taken of any service pension, as defined in paragraph (1)(b) of this regulation, in relation to the Act of 1956, and

(b) for the purpose of determining the supplement under Part II of these Regulations the amount of any comparable relevant increases in the overseas pensions shall not exceed an amount which when added to the comparable relevant increases in the corresponding pensions is equal to the relevant increase which would have been payable in respect of the single basic pension at a rate equal to the aggregate of his basic pensions and beginning at a time when the earliest of them began apart from any basic pension which began at a time when if it were the only basic pension eligible for benefit under these Regulations, it would not have attracted any such relevant increase, such relevant increase being apportioned among the overseas pensions in the same proportion as the comparable relevant increase in the overseas pension bears to the aggregate of the comparable relevant increases in the overseas pensions, and

(c) in the application of paragraph (2) of this regulation, sub-paragraph (a)(i) shall be disregarded.

(4) In the application of this regulation to any person who is in receipt of a pension determined in accordance with section 2 of the Governors' Pensions Act 1957(a), as amended by the Superannuation (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1967, any pension in respect of service in the overseas civil service taken into account for the purposes of section 2(2)(b) of the said Act shall be regarded—

(a) as beginning on the same date as the Governor's pension granted under the Act, and

(b) as being the basic pension granted for that service notwithstanding that it may include an addition made in accordance with an enactment, scheme, or other instrument providing for the increase of pensions, but the amount of any such addition which is so included shall not be taken into account in determining the overseas increases in respect of that pension.

(5) Where a person is in receipt of more than one pension to which the provisions of regulation 9 of these Regulations apply, the periods during which the officer in respect of whose service the pensions are payable contributed in respect of those pensions shall be aggregated for the purpose of determining the maximum supplement payable under the provisions of paragraph (2)(a) of this regulation:

Provided that where contributions were made in respect of more than one such pension in relation to the same period of service that period shall not be taken into account more than once.

(6) Where a person who is in receipt of a pension to which the provisions of regulation 9 of these Regulations apply is also in receipt of a pension to which those provisions do not apply, the supplements payable under these Regulations shall not in the aggregate exceed the amount which would be payable if he were in receipt of a single basic pension equal to the aggregate of his basic pensions, together with a single overseas increase at a rate equal to the aggregate of his overseas increases, and if such single basic pension were regarded as a pension to which the provisions of regulation 9 apply and which was determined by reference to the period of contributions made in respect of the pension actually payable to which the provisions of regulation 9 apply:

Provided that in determining the supplement in respect of the aforesaid single basic pension the amount of any relevant increase to that pension shall not exceed an amount which, when added to the comparable relevant increases in his corresponding pensions, is equal to the relevant increase which would have been payable in respect of the single basic pension at a rate equal to the aggregate of his basic pensions and beginning at a time when the earliest of them began apart from any basic pension which began at a time when, if it were the only basic pension eligible for benefit under these Regulations, it would not have attracted any such relevant increase, such relevant increase being apportioned among the overseas pensions in the same proportion as the comparable relevant increase in the overseas pension bears to the aggregate of the comparable relevant increases in the overseas pensions.

PART VI

GENERAL AND SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS

12. Subject to the provisions of these Regulations, in the application of the Acts of 1920 to 1969 for the purpose of determining the supplement payable under these Regulations regard shall be had to the provisions of these Acts as they would be applied to a pension payable under the Superannuation Acts 1965 and 1967:

Provided that—

(a) in the case of any Act specified in the first column of Schedule 3 to these Regulations no account shall be taken of those provisions specified in the second column of that Schedule, and

(b) paragraph (i) of the definition of "the relevant date" in section 1(1) of the Act of 1956 and paragraph 2 of the Second Schedule thereof shall apply as if the date mentioned therein were the 1st January 1950.

13. Whenever, for the purpose of ascertaining any supplement payable under these Regulations, it is necessary to convert into sterling a basic pension or an overseas increase initially payable in a currency other than sterling, the rate of exchange to be taken for the purpose of any such conversion shall be the rate of exchange between that currency and sterling in force on 1st January 1963:

Provided that where an overseas increase is converted by the paying authority into any other currency at the official rate of exchange at the time of payment, and the amount of such increase in terms of sterling is less than it would have been if the overseas increase had been converted into sterling at the official rate of exchange on 1st January 1963 between the currency in which the overseas increase was initially payable and sterling, then the rate of exchange to be taken for the purpose of these Regulations shall be the official rate of exchange between such currency and sterling at the time of payment of the overseas increase.

14.—(1) In any case where an overseas increase which has been taken into account in determining any supplement payable under these Regulations is revised with retrospective effect such supplement shall be revised accordingly with similar effect and any overpayment made to the pensioner as a result of the revision may be recovered from him.

(2) Where any refund of overpayment as required by paragraph (1) of this regulation is not made within one month of notification no further supplements shall be payable to the pensioner until the amount of the refund so required has been made.

15. Application for a supplement under these Regulations shall be made to the Minister of Overseas Development who may require proof that any person applying for such supplement, or any person on behalf of whom such an application is made, is alive and eligible for such supplement, and no payment shall be made until such proof is furnished.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations.)

These Regulations, which replace the Overseas Service (Pensions Supplement) Regulations 1966 and 1968 and the Overseas Service (Pensions Supplement) (Special Provisions) Regulations 1966, provide for the payment of supplements on pensions paid to or in respect of overseas civil servants.

Part II of these Regulations provides for the payment to an officer of a supplement which together with any increase or supplement otherwise payable on his pension corresponds as nearly as may be with the increases which would be payable on a similar pension under the Pensions (Increase) Acts 1920 to 1969. Similar provision for the dependants of officers is made in Part IV of the Regulations.

Part III of the Regulations provides for the payment of an additional supplement where a pension paid to an officer under the Oversea Superannuation Scheme is of a reduced amount because the contributions to that Scheme in respect of his overseas service were reduced by virtue of his continuing contributions to the Federated Superannuation System for Universities or other similar approved scheme during that overseas service.

The provisions of Regulation 13 ensure that the calculation of supplements is unaffected by changes in rates of exchange since the 1st January 1963 i.e. the effective date of the Pensions (Increase) Act 1962. Under the proviso to Regulation 13, however, an overseas increase cannot be deemed to be larger than it is in terms of sterling for the purposes of these regulations.

In accordance with section 3(3) of the Pensions (Increase) Act 1962, section 3(4) of the Pensions (Increase) Act 1965 and paragraphs 9 and 10 of Schedule 2 to the Pensions (Increase) Act 1969, the supplements are retrospectively payable from 1st April 1969.
