(b) additional contributions shall be paid and their amount determined by either Method I or Method II, whichever shall correspond to the Method by which he was last liable under an external scheme to pay contributions corresponding to additional contributions;

(c) except as provided in paragraph (5) of this regulation, the period of previous service shall be deemed to be the period by reference to which under the external scheme first applicable to him the amount of the contributions corresponding to additional contributions payable by him by a Method corresponding to either Method I or Method II was determined, reduced by the aggregate of the periods specified in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph;

(d) the day from which additional contributions commence to be payable by him shall be—

(i) if, after last ceasing to be employed in class A external service, his contributions in respect of that service and his contributions corresponding to normal contributions under the external scheme last applicable to him were repaid to him, the first day of the month commencing next after the repayment by him of those superannuation contributions;

in his having not less than 10 years of service counting for benefit; and, if the Secretary of State accepts any such election, the period of service so reduced shall be substituted for the period specified in paragraph (4)(c) of this regulation.

(6) Any question arising under this regulation as to the period of service of a former external contributor which is, under paragraph (4)(a)(ii) of this regulation, to be treated as service counting for benefit shall be decided by the Secretary of State and his decision thereon shall be final.

(7) A former external contributor who was liable under an external scheme to pay contributions corresponding to additional contributions by a method corresponding to Method III shall, if he becomes a contributor, pay additional contributions by Method III; and, for the purpose of determining the amount thereof—

34.—(1) Except as provided in paragraph (4) of this regulation, in the case of a contributor who is paying additional contributions in accordance with either Method I or Method II and who ceases to be employed in reckonable service before attaining the age of 60, being entitled to superannuation allowances under regulation 40(1)(a) of the Principal Regulations on attaining that or any lesser age substituted therefor under the said regulations, the balance of the additional contributions payable by him shall be paid by means of the surrender of the whole or a proportion of any sums payable to or in respect of him under the Principal Regulations.

(2) Except as provided in paragraph (4) of this regulation, in the case of a contributor who is paying additional contributions in accordance with Method II and who ceases to be employed in reckonable service after having attained the age of 60 and before attaining the age of 65 being then entitled to superannuation allowances under regulation 40(1)(a) of the Principal Regulations, the balance of the additional contributions payable by him shall be paid by means of the surrender of the whole or a proportion of the additional allowance payable to him on his so ceasing.

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this regulation the balance of the additional contributions payable by a contributor shall be—

- (a) in a case to which the said paragraph (1) applies, the sum equal to the difference between—
 - (i) the amount of such contributions already paid by him; and
 - (ii) the amount which would have been paid by him if he had continued to be employed in reckonable service until the end of the period during which such contributions would have been payable by him at the same rate of salary as that being paid to him immediately before he ceased to be so employed together with compound interest thereon calculated at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum with yearly rests from the date of his ceasing to be so employed; and

- (b) in a case to which the said paragraph (2) applies, the sum equal to the difference between—
- (i) the amount of such contributions already paid by him; and
 - (ii) the amount which would have been paid by him if he had continued to be employed in reckonable service until the end of the period during which such contributions would have been payable by him at a rate of salary equal to his average salary for purposes of the Principal Regulations.

(4) This regulation shall not apply to a contributor who, on ceasing to be employed in reckonable service, becomes a contributor under an external scheme.

Contributions during Intervals of Service

35. A contributor who, on his employment in reckonable service being discontinued, continues to pay superannuation contributions shall continue to pay contributions under the Scheme and, for the purpose of determining the amount of such contributions, the amount of his salary shall be taken to be the same as for the purpose of the payment of superannuation contributions by him.

Payment of Outstanding Contributions

36. The amounts of any normal contributions and of any additional contributions payable by Method I or Method II which have not been paid by a contributor in accordance with the preceding provisions of this Part when he ceases to be employed in reckonable service or dies or, in the case of such additional contributions, attains the age at which they cease to be payable, shall, together with compound interest thereon calculated at 4 per cent. per annum with yearly rests, be paid to the Secretary of State either:—

- (a) in such manner as may be agreed, or failing agreement,

(3) Where additional contributions in respect of previous service are required by any provisions of these regulations to be paid by Method III and the amount payable by way of additional allowance, short service gratuity, death gratuity or repayment of the balance of superannuation contributions under the Principal Regulations is insufficient to enable payment to be made in full by the surrender thereof, then, unless payment of the deficiency is made in some other manner, so much only of the period of previous service in respect of which the contributions were payable as would under regulation 31 have required the surrender of the amount of the said additional allowance, short service gratuity, death gratuity or the balance of superannuation contributions, as the case may be, shall be service counting for benefit.

Provided that—

(a) a woman teacher who nominates her husband for a life pension may—

(i) nominate him for a life pension not exceeding one-sixth of her salary at the time of nomination; and

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations.)

These Regulations revoke and replace the Teachers Superannuation (Family Benefits) (Scotland) Regulations 1967 and in general reproduce the effect of those regulations in the modern terms of the Teachers Superannuation (Scotland) Act 1968 and the Teachers Superannuation (Scotland) Regulations 1969. Apart from changes of terminology and minor drafting changes the only significant changes effected by these Regulations are increases in the minimum rates of benefits for widows and children and a raising of the limit on the proportion of the assets of the Fund which may be invested in equity stocks and shares.

The Regulations continue the existing provision for payment of pensions under one scheme in respect of the widows and children of teachers, and under a separate scheme in respect of the dependants of teachers. The pensions are paid from a Fund provided by teachers' contributions and managed by a Board of Management consisting of representatives appointed by bodies representing teachers, education authorities and the Secretary of State.

The Secretary of State is responsible for the general administration of the Schemes. His expenses, including the administrative expenses of the Board, and those of education authorities and other employers of teachers are deemed to be contributions to the Fund relating to the Schemes. Trustees are appointed in connection with investments relating to the Schemes.

The Widows' and Children's Scheme in Part IV of the Regulations applies to men teachers only. Those entering Scottish reckonable service for the first time on or after 1st April 1965 and who have not been in pensionable teaching service elsewhere in the British Isles are compulsorily included; those in teaching before that date are compulsorily included unless they opt out of the Scheme. Teachers who have been contributing under comparable Widows' and Children's Schemes elsewhere in the British Isles are compulsorily included in the Scottish Scheme on entering Scottish reckonable service. Both men and women teachers may participate voluntarily in the Dependants' Scheme in Part V of the Regulations under which within certain limitations a teacher may nominate dependent relatives for pensions of such amounts as may be specified by the teacher.

Pensions under the Widows' and Children's Scheme are payable, for life or until remarriage, to the widows of contributing teachers with 10 years or more service under the Scheme, at rates related to the teachers' own pensions or to their salary and length of service, subject to a minimum amount. Smaller pensions are payable to widows of teachers with shorter service of at least 3 years whose children are eligible for children's pensions under the Scheme, and to widows already aged 50 or over when their husbands died; those widowed at 50 or over and those who have reached that age before children's pensions ceased to be payable will receive pensions for life or until remarriage. Children's pensions varying according to family size and circumstances are provided for the eligible children of teachers whose service amounted to 3 years or more. The minimum annual rate for the widow's pension is £125 in respect of teachers dying on or after 1st February 1969 and £115 in other cases. The annual rates of children's pensions range from £65 to £355 in respect of teachers dying on or after 1st February 1969 and from £60 to £325 in other cases.

Contributions to the Widows' and Children's Scheme for service after joining the Scheme are payable at the rate of 2 per cent. of salary. Payment for previous service may be made by additional contributions from salary until the contributor reaches age 60 or 65 or by deduction from the additional allowance or death gratuity or return of contributions payable under the main scheme of teachers' superannuation or by a combination of such contributions and deduction. Provision is made for contributions to the Widows' and Children's Scheme to be returned in certain circumstances in full or in part with interest added thereto.

Under the Dependants' Scheme life or temporary pensions, subject to specified limits, are payable in return for fixed annual contributions assessed actuarially according to the age and sex of the teacher and nominee. A teacher may at any one time have one adult and one incapacitated child as nominees for life pensions and up to 3 children as nominees for temporary pensions. A woman teacher may in addition nominate her dependent husband for a life pension.
