EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations.)

These Regulations amend the Teachers (Colleges of Education) (Scotland) Regulations 1967, as amended, to extend the award of nursery school and infant teacher special qualifications to men; to provide, in place of the special qualification in relation to backward pupils, for courses leading to a special qualification as a remedial teacher in primary schools or in secondary schools; to provide for courses of training for social work; and to enable the governing body of a college of education to award a special qualification to a registered teacher who, although he has not undertaken special training in Scotland, is, in their opinion, qualified for such an award.
