The alterations take account of the introduction in the United Kingdom of the imputation system of corporation tax which, so far as it relates to the tax treatment of dividends paid by a United Kingdom company to an overseas shareholder, came into operation on 6th April 1973, and the new rules are expressed to take effect in relation to dividends paid on or after that date. They provide that where a United Kingdom company pays a dividend to an individual resident in the Faroe Islands or to a Faroese company which controls less than 10 per cent of the voting power in the paying company, the recipient is, subject to certain conditions, to receive the tax credit to which an individual resident in the United Kingdom and in receipt of such a dividend would be entitled less income tax at a rate not exceeding 15 per cent on the aggregate of the dividend and the tax credit.
