Prohibition of landing of poultry and eggs

4.—(1) The landing in Great Britain of any poultry or eggs from a place outside Great Britain is hereby prohibited except under the authority of a licence in writing issued by the appropriate Minister and in accordance with the conditions of that licence.

(2) A licence may be either general or specific and may, in either case, be issued subject to such conditions specified therein as the appropriate Minister may see fit to impose for the purpose of preventing the introduction or spreading of disease into or within Great Britain.

(3) A general licence shall be issued by the publication of it in such manner and to such extent as appears to the appropriate Minister to be sufficient to bring it to the notice of those persons likely to be affected by it.

(4) The appropriate Minister may vary, revoke or suspend a licence—

(a) in the case of a general licence, by a notice published, so far as practicable, in the same manner and to the same extent as the licence; and

(b) in the case of a specific licence, by a notice in writing served on the person to whom the licence was issued.

Detention of poultry and eggs in quarantine

5.—(1) Poultry and eggs landed in Great Britain shall, except where the licence otherwise provides, be detained in quarantine, at the owner's expense, for such period and at such premises as shall, and subject to such conditions as may, be specified in the licence.

(2) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (1) above, a veterinary inspector may, for the purpose of preventing the introduction or spreading of disease into or within Great Britain, by notice in writing served on the owner or the person in charge of poultry or eggs landed in Great Britain require such poultry or eggs to be detained in quarantine, at the owner's expense, for such period, or (where the poultry or eggs are being detained in quarantine at the time when the notice is served) for such further period, as shall be specified in the notice, and subject to such conditions as may be so specified, and where the poultry or eggs in respect of which the notice is served were excepted from the requirement contained in paragraph (1) above, the notice shall specify the premises at which the poultry or eggs are to be so detained.

(3) It shall be the duty of the person for the time being in charge of the poultry or eggs required to be detained under this article to ensure that, until such time as they arrive at the premises at which they are to be detained, they are kept separate from poultry or eggs which do not form part of the same consignment.

(4) No person shall remove or attempt to remove, or cause or permit the removal or attempted removal of, any poultry or eggs which are being detained under this article from the premises at which they are being so detained, except with the written authority of a veterinary inspector and in accordance with any conditions subject to which that authority is given.

(5) The prohibition in paragraph (4) above extends to the removal or attempted removal of carcasses of poultry or parts of eggs referred to in that paragraph.

- (ii) to slaughter such poultry or destroy such eggs.

(3) Where the owner or the person in charge of the poultry or eggs fails to comply—

- (a) with a requirement under paragraph (1) above, or
- (b) with the requirements of a notice served under paragraph (2) above, a veterinary inspector may, without prejudice to any proceedings for an offence arising out of such failure, seize the poultry or eggs to which the requirement or the notice relates and carry out or cause to be carried out—

- (i) any tests specified in the requirement, or
- (ii) the requirements of the notice.

(4) A veterinary inspector may at any time seize or cause to be seized, and may thereafter slaughter or cause to be slaughtered or, as the case may be, destroy or cause to be destroyed any poultry or eggs to which paragraph (1) above applies.

- (i) to slaughter the poultry or destroy the eggs,
- (ii) to export the poultry or eggs from Great Britain, or
- (iii) to place the poultry or eggs in quarantine for such period and at such premises as he shall, and subject to such conditions as he may, specify in the notice, and where the owner or the person in charge of the poultry or eggs fails to comply with the requirements of the notice, a veterinary inspector may seize or cause to be seized the poultry or eggs to which the notice relates and carry out or cause to be carried out the requirements of the notice.

(2) A veterinary inspector may at any time seize or cause to be seized and may thereafter slaughter or cause to be slaughtered or, as the case may be, destroy or cause to be destroyed—

- (a) any poultry or eggs to which paragraph (1) above applies, and
- (b) any poultry or eggs which may have been in contact with any poultry or eggs to which that paragraph applies.

Cleansing and disinfection of premises, vehicles etc

8.—(1) Where a veterinary inspector suspects that poultry or eggs which have been landed in Great Britain are or may be affected with disease, he may by notice in writing served on the owner or the person in charge of the premises, place, vessel, aircraft, vehicle, pen or container on or in which the poultry or eggs are or have been present require the person on whom the notice is served to cleanse and disinfect such premises, place, vessel, aircraft, vehicle, pen or container, or to destroy or otherwise dispose of such container, in such manner and within such time as he may by such notice specify at the expense of such person.

(2) Where the requirements of a notice served under paragraph (1) above have not been complied with, a veterinary inspector may, without prejudice to any proceedings for an offence arising out of such failure to comply, carry out or cause to be carried out the requirements, of the notice and for this purpose a veterinary inspector may seize or cause to be seized a container.

(3) Nothing in articles 6 and 7 above shall be construed as precluding the owner of any poultry or eggs to which any provision of those articles applies from slaughtering such poultry or destroying such eggs.

(4) A veterinary inspector may vary, revoke, or suspend a notice served, or an authority given, under this order by a notice in writing served on the person on whom the notice was served or to whom the authority was given.

A veterinary inspector entering under this paragraph shall, if required by the owner, or the person in charge of the land, premises, vehicle, pen or container, state his reasons for entering.

(6) The owner or the person in charge of poultry or eggs to which articles 6 or 7 above apply shall give all reasonable assistance to a veterinary inspector and any person accompanying him so as to enable the powers conferred by those articles to be properly exercised.
