EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

This Order makes transitional and supplementary provisions to facilitate the transfer of education responsibilities from the Inner London Education Authority ("ILEA") to the inner London councils on 1st April 1990. First, it provides for the inner London councils (as defined in section 163(2) of the Education Reform Act 1988) to take preparatory steps by appointing standing advisory councils on religious education in advance of the transfer and by making arrangements, after consultation, for considering complaints made on or after 1st April 1990 about the curriculum and religious worship. Secondly, it relieves ILEA, in the period before abolition, of the obligation to establish such a council and from the duty to make such arrangements. It also relieves the Common Council of the City of London from the duty to establish a standing advisory council on religious education.
