1992 No. 334

The Planning and Compensation Act 1991 (Commencement
No. 7 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1992

Transitional provisions

5.—(1) Until such time as section 42 of the 1991 Act is brought fully into force—

- (a) an enforcement notice which relates to a failure to comply with any condition or limitation relating to the carrying out of building, engineering, mining or other operations, in, on, over or under land and subject to which planning permission was granted for the development of that land, may be issued only within the period of four years from the date of the breach; and
- (b) nothing in section 83B(3) of the 1972 Act prevents an enforcement notice which relates to a breach of planning control (other than a breach falling within section 83B(1) or (2) of the 1972 Act or paragraph (a) above) being issued where it appears to the planning authority that the breach occurred after the end of 1964.

(2) Subject to paragraph (3), the commencement of paragraph (b) of section 83B(4) shall not permit the taking of further enforcement action in respect of any existing breach of planning control where, immediately before the commencement of that paragraph, the planning authority could not have issued an enforcement notice relating to that breach.

(3) Paragraph (2) does not apply where any proceedings under the 1972 Act in respect of the breach pursuant to the issue or purported issue of an enforcement notice by the planning authority have not been finally determined before the commencement of paragraph (b) of section 83B(4).
