Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

Regulation 41 of the Income Tax (Employments) Regulations 1993 (S.I.1993/744) (“the PAYE Regulations”) enables an employer to account to the collector for tax liable to be deducted under PAYE from payments to employees made by him in any quarterly period in a year of assessment within 14 days of the end of that quarterly period, rather than having to account within 14 days of the end of any income tax month for tax which he was liable to deduct from payments made in that month. The employer may only account on a quarterly basis if he has reasonable grounds for believing that the average monthly total amount to be paid to the collector in the year of assessment in respect of PAYE tax, national insurance contributions and deductions from payments to sub-contractors in the construction industry will not exceed the amount specified in regulation 41(3) of the PAYE Regulations.

These Regulations increase the amount specified in regulation 41(3) of the PAYE Regulations from £600 to £1000 with effect from 6th April 1999, that is, from the beginning of the year of assessment 1999–00.

The costs savings and other benefits for employers to whom this amending provision applies are set out in a Regulatory Impact Assessment a copy of which has been placed in the library of the House of Commons or may be obtained from Inland Revenue, Room 36, New Wing, Somerset House, Strand, London WC2R 1LB, or from the Inland Revenue web site at <http://www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk>.
