EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations amend the Universal Credit Regulations 2013 (S.I. 2013/376) by making further provision for the calculation of earned income for the purposes of calculating an award of universal credit.

Regulation 2 provides for past earnings to be taken into account where a claimant has ceased to be entitled to universal credit within the past 6 months because of excess earnings. Paragraph (1) inserts a new regulation 54A which determines the circumstances in which an amount of earnings during the period when the person was not entitled to universal credit may be treated as earned income in calculating a new award. Paragraph (3) amends regulation 62 (minimum income floor) so that where such an amount is taken into account it is added to earned income before that regulation is applied and, in the case of a joint claim, apportioned in the way that is most favourable to the claimants.

Surplus earnings are not applied in the case of a claimant who has recently been the victim of domestic violence.

Regulation 3 amends regulation 57 of the Universal Credit Regulations 2013 (which sets out how self-employed earnings are calculated for each assessment period) so as to allow unused losses from previous assessment periods to be taken into account. Unused losses are defined in the new regulation 57A. These are any losses from the previous 11 assessment periods that have not yet been set off against subsequent profits. For this purpose the months in any break between awards (not exceeding 6) may be treated as if they were assessment periods and, accordingly, losses for that period can be taken into account.

Regulation 4 (savings) provides that the amendments in regulations 2 and 3 only have effect in relation to those awards (collectively known as “the digital service”) arising from claims made by persons living in the postcode specified in that regulation or from such persons subsequently forming new couples. Regulation 4 also provides for the exclusion of surpluses and losses arising before the regulations come into force.

The report of the Social Security Advisory Committee dated 12th December 2014 in relation to the Secretary of State’s proposals to make these Regulations, together with a statement showing the extent to which these Regulations give effect to the recommendations of the Committee and, in so far as they do not give effect to them, the reasons why not, are contained in an Act Paper published by The Stationery Office Ltd.
