

Succession (Scotland) Act 2016

2016 asp 7

Survivorship

10 Equal division of property if order of beneficiaries' deaths uncertain

- (1) This section applies, instead of section 9, for the purposes of determining rights of succession or title to property where—
 - (a) property is to pass, or be transferred, to—
 - (i) the estate of whichever member of a group of persons dies first (or the estates of whichever members die first),
 - (ii) whichever member of a group of persons survives the other members (or whichever members survive the other members), or
 - (iii) the members of a group of persons equally or the survivor (or survivors) of them,
 - (b) two (or more) of the members of the group die simultaneously or in circumstances in which the order of death is uncertain,
 - (c) had the deaths not been simultaneous or (as the case may be) had the order of death been certain, the property would have passed, or been transferred, to one (or more) of the persons mentioned in paragraph (b), and
 - (d) apart from this section, no provision has been made to deal with that situation.
- (2) The property is to be divided equally between (or among) the estates of the persons mentioned in subsection (1)(b).
- (3) For the purposes of this section, a “group of persons” may consist of two persons or more than two persons.
- (4) This section does not apply if the property is to pass under a will and the persons mentioned in subsection (1)(b) and the testator die simultaneously or in circumstances in which the order of death is uncertain.
