

Trade Union and Labour Relations Act 1974

1974 CHAPTER 52

Miscellaneous

24 Power to compensate for loss of office

- (1) If it appears to the Secretary of State that a person who ceases to be a member of the Commission on Industrial Relations by reason of its abolition by this Act should receive compensation for loss of office, he may pay him out of moneys provided by Parliament such sum as he may with the approval of the Minister for the Civil Service determine.
- (2) If it appears to the Lord Chancellor that a person who ceases to be a member of the National Industrial Relations Court by reason of its abolition by this Act should receive compensation for loss of office, he may pay him out of moneys provided by Parliament such sum as he may with the approval of the Minister for the Civil Service determine.