(This Note is not part of the Order.)

This Order, which is made under section 1 of the Anguilla Act 1971, confers a new constitution on Anguilla, and supersedes the Anguilla (Administration) Order 1971, which is revoked.

The Constitution contains provision with regard to the office of Commissioner, the Executive Council, the Legislature and the Judicature.

The Anguilla Council is replaced by an Executive Council and a Legislative Assembly, each consisting of ex-officio and elected members, with nominated members in addition in the case of the Assembly.

While the Constitution requires the Commissioner in general to exercise his functions in accordance with the advice of the Executive Council, it provides for him to be responsible in his discretion for defence, external affairs, internal security, including the police, and certain matters relating to the public service.

Provision is made for the assignment of responsibility for business or departments of the Government to members of the Executive Council.
