EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

These Regulations further amend the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986 (“the 1986 Regulations”) in relation to in-service exhaust emissions tests as a result of the requirement to implement Commission Directive 2001/9/EC(3) which amended Council Directive 96/96/EC(4) (“the Roadworthiness Directive”).

In order to implement those aspects of the Roadworthiness Directive relating to the testing of exhaust emissions, S.I. 1995 No. 2210 made some amendments to Regulation 61 and inserted Schedule 7B into the 1986 Regulations. Schedule 7B sets out the acceptable exhaust emissions limits for normal and high idling speeds. Hitherto, the manufacturer of any vehicle has been able to specify the relevant limit for normal idling speeds, but in relation to fast idling speeds the limit has been specified as 0.3%.

Requirements for such tests are laid out in paragraph 8.2.1(b)(4) of Annex II to the Roadworthiness Directive. This paragraph has been amended by Commission Directive 2001/9/EC with the result that the manufacturer of any vehicle may, from the time that these Regulations come into force, specify the relevant limit for both normal and fast idling speeds.

Regulation 2 of these Regulations therefore amends Schedule 7A so as to delete the specification of 0.3% for fast idling speeds and to allow the manufacturer to set the specification for the relevant vehicle. Where no such specification is available, the limit remains at 0.3%.

A Regulatory Impact Assessment has been prepared and copies can be obtained from the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions, Zone 4/15, Great Minster House, 76 Marsham Street, London SW1P 4DR (telephone: 020-7944-2063). Copies are being placed in the Libraries of each House of Parliament. No separate transposition note has been provided since all the relevant information is contained within this Explanatory Note.

Copies of the relevant EC Directives can be obtained from the Stationery Office.
