1974/1775), the Anthrax Prevention Order 1971 (Exemptions) Regulations 1982 (S.I. 1982/1418), and the Health and Safety (Miscellaneous Modifications) Regulations 1993 (S.I. The bacillus anthracis bacterium is a biological agent and a substance hazardous to health within the meaning of regulation 2(1) of COSHH. COSHH imposes duties on employers to protect employees and other persons who may be exposed to substances hazardous to health, and also imposes certain duties on employees concerning their own protection from exposure. Imports of products covered by the three instruments are subject to the Products of Animal Origin (Third Country Imports)(England)(No. 3) Regulations 2004 (S.I. 2004/2640), the Products of Animal Origin (Third Country Imports)(Wales) Regulations 2004 (S.I.
