7. Policy background

7.1 The Government believes that every child, irrespective of background or circumstances, deserves the best start in life. To achieve this, since 1997, the Government's strategy has been to provide support for all families, with more for those that need it most. This principle of progressive universalism has underpinned the Government's overall approach to reform of financial support, alongside its goals in tackling child poverty. The Health in Pregnancy Grant recognises a gap in financial support to many women during pregnancy whose income just excludes them from existing sources of income related support.

7.2 All women face additional costs during pregnancy and with competing financial pressures, this can lead to some difficult spending choices, especially for women on low incomes. The grant will provide support to all expectant mothers in recognition of these extra costs. Linked to the requirement to receive maternal health advice from a health professional, the Health in Pregnancy Grant is designed to help pregnant women to meet their individual needs, while providing them with flexibility to choose how they budget and where they spend this money.

7.3 The Grant underpins the support that is already available to those mothers-to-be with low incomes provided through the Sure Start Maternity Grant, which helps with the additional costs at the time of the child's birth, and the Healthy Start Vouchers, which help with the costs of milk, fruit and vegetables during pregnancy and after birth.

7.4 The Health in Pregnancy Grant is a non-contributory benefit available to all expectant mothers ordinarily resident in the UK. It can be claimed from the 25th week of pregnancy; it is not taxable and receipt has no bearing on entitlement to income-related benefits. The grant will be payable from 6th April 2009, and women expected to give birth on or after 6th April 2009 will be able to make a claim from January 2009. This is in order to phrase in the administration of the grant.

7.5 The Health in Pregnancy Grant (Entitlement and Amount) Regulations specify the conditions a woman must satisfy to be entitled to the Grant. These include: the definition of a health professional and the requirements for being treated as present in the UK, including provisions relating to Crown servants posted overseas and their family members who accompany them on a posting. The Regulations provide for the amount of the Grant to be £190 in the first instance. The Health in Pregnancy (Administration) Regulations follow a similar approach to that adopted by social security benefits in general. The Regulations prescribe the rules governing the timing and manner in which claims should be made, including what information is required with the claim; the manner and timing of payments including to whom payment should be made with special provision for women who are unable to act for themselves.

- 9.3 To bring Health in Pregnancy Grant to the attention of expectant mothers HMRC will build a free media campaign from December onwards using national, consumer, specialist and regional press and broadcasters. We will also target ethnic media to ensure non-English speakers are aware of the new Grant.
