PREVENTION AND SUPPRESSION OF TERRORISM

The Terrorism Act 2000 (Remedial) Order 2011

Made	- - - -	16th March 2011
Laid before Parliament		17th March 2011
Coming into force	- -	18th March 2011

It appears to the Secretary of State, following a finding of the European Court of Human Rights⁽¹⁾ after the coming into force of section 10 of the Human Rights Act 1998⁽²⁾ in proceedings against the United Kingdom, that certain provisions of the Terrorism Act 2000⁽³⁾ are incompatible with an obligation of the United Kingdom arising from the Convention⁽⁴⁾.

The Secretary of State considers that there are compelling reasons for proceeding by way of a remedial order⁽⁵⁾ to make such amendments to the Terrorism Act 2000 as the Secretary of State considers necessary to remove the incompatibility.

It appears to the Secretary of State that, because of the urgency of the matter, it is necessary to make this Order without a draft being approved by resolution of each House of Parliament⁽⁶⁾.

Accordingly, the Secretary of State makes the following Order in exercise of the powers conferred by section 10(2) of, and paragraph 1(1) of Schedule 2 to, the Human Rights Act 1998:

Citation and commencement

1. This Order may be cited as the Terrorism Act 2000 (Remedial) Order 2011 and shall come into force on 18th March 2011.

Current stop and search powers no longer to have effect

2. The Terrorism Act 2000 is to have effect as if sections 44 to 47⁽⁷⁾ of that Act (power to stop and search) were repealed.

(2) 1998 c.42.

(3) 2000 c.11.

(4) See section 21(1) of the Human Rights Act 1998 for the meaning of “the Convention”.

(5) See section 21(1) of the Human Rights Act 1998 for the meaning of “remedial order”.

(6) This declaration is made pursuant to paragraph 2(b) of Schedule 2 to the Human Rights Act 1998.

(7) Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 was amended by section 78(2)(c) of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000 (c.32), section 30(1), (2) and (3) of the Terrorism Act 2006 (c.11), section 101 of and paragraphs 29 and 31 of Schedule 7 to the Anti-

Replacement powers to stop and search in specified locations

3.—(1) The Terrorism Act 2000 is to have effect as if before section 48 (and the italic cross-heading before it) there were inserted—

“47A Searches in specified areas or places

(1) A senior police officer may give an authorisation under subsection (2) or (3) in relation to a specified area or place if the officer—

- (a) reasonably suspects that an act of terrorism will take place; and
- (b) considers that—
 - (i) the authorisation is necessary to prevent such an act;
 - (ii) the specified area or place is no greater than is necessary to prevent such an act; and
 - (iii) the duration of the authorisation is no longer than is necessary to prevent such an act.

(2) An authorisation under this subsection authorises any constable in uniform to stop a vehicle in the specified area or place and to search—

- (a) the vehicle;
- (b) the driver of the vehicle;
- (c) a passenger in the vehicle;
- (d) anything in or on the vehicle or carried by the driver or a passenger.

(3) An authorisation under this subsection authorises any constable in uniform to stop a pedestrian in the specified area or place and to search—

- (a) the pedestrian;
- (b) anything carried by the pedestrian.

(4) A constable in uniform may exercise the power conferred by an authorisation under subsection (2) or (3) only for the purpose of discovering whether there is anything which may constitute evidence that the vehicle concerned is being used for the purposes of terrorism or (as the case may be) that the person concerned is a person falling within section 40(1)(b).

(5) But the power conferred by such an authorisation may be exercised whether or not the constable reasonably suspects that there is such evidence.

(6) A constable may seize and retain anything which the constable—

- (a) discovers in the course of a search under such an authorisation; and
- (b) reasonably suspects may constitute evidence that the vehicle concerned is being used for the purposes of terrorism or (as the case may be) that the person concerned is a person falling within section 40(1)(b).

(7) Schedule 6B (which makes supplementary provision about authorisations under this section) has effect.

(8) In this section—

Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 (c. 24), article 12(6)(c) of S.I. 2004/1573, section 57(1) and (2) and section 197(9) of and Part 1 of Schedule 23 to the Energy Act 2004 (c. 20); section 45 of the Terrorism Act 2000 was amended by section 30(1) and (4) of the Terrorism Act 2006; and section 46 of the Terrorism Act 2000 was amended by section 57(1) and (3) of the Energy Act 2004.

“driver”, in relation to an aircraft, hovercraft or vessel, means the captain, pilot or other person with control of the aircraft, hovercraft or vessel or any member of its crew and, in relation to a train, includes any member of its crew;

“senior police officer” has the same meaning as in Schedule 6B (see paragraph 14(1) and (2) of that Schedule);

“specified” means specified in an authorisation.”

(2) Schedule 1 (which provides for the Terrorism Act 2000 to have effect as if a new Schedule making supplementary provision about powers to stop and search in specified locations were inserted after Schedule 6A to that Act) has effect.

Code of Practice

4. The Terrorism Act 2000 is to have effect as if after section 47A (for which see article 3) there were inserted—

“47B Code of practice relating to section 47A

(1) The Secretary of State must issue a code of practice containing guidance about—

- (a) the exercise of the powers to give an authorisation under section 47A(2) or (3),
- (b) the exercise of the powers conferred by such an authorisation and section 47A(6), and

(c) such other matters in connection with the exercise of any of the powers mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (b) as the Secretary of State considers appropriate.

(2) Such a code may make different provision for different purposes.

(3) In the course of preparing such a code, the Secretary of State must, so far as is practicable, consult the Lord Advocate and such other persons as the Secretary of State considers appropriate.

(4) The requirement to consult in subsection (3), in relation to the preparation of a code of practice, may be satisfied by any such consultation which takes place before the day on which the Terrorism Act 2000 (Remedial) Order 2011 (S.I. 2011/631) comes into force.

(5) The Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a copy of a code of practice issued under subsection (1).

(6) The Secretary of State may revise such a code and must issue any such revised code.

(7) Subsections (2), (3), (5) and (6) have effect in relation to a revised code as they have effect in relation to the code first issued.

47C Effect of code

(1) A constable must have regard to the search powers code when exercising any powers to which the code relates.

(2) A failure on the part of a constable to act in accordance with any provision of the search powers code does not of itself make that person liable to criminal or civil proceedings.

(3) The search powers code is admissible in evidence in any such proceedings.

(4) A court or tribunal may, in particular, take into account a failure by a constable to have regard to the search powers code in determining a question in any such proceedings.

(5) The references in this section to a constable include, in relation to any functions exercisable by a person by virtue of paragraph 15 of Schedule 4 to the Police Reform

Act 2002⁽⁸⁾ or paragraph 16 of Schedule 2A to the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2003⁽⁹⁾ (search powers in specified areas or places for community support officers), references to that person.

(6) In this section “the search powers code” means the code of practice issued under section 47B(1) (as revised from time to time).”

Consequential amendments

5. Schedule 2 (which provides for various enactments to have effect as if certain consequential amendments were made) has effect.

Temporary effect of Order and transitional provision

6.—(1) If a public general Act passed in the same Session as the Session in which this Order is made makes provision to repeal sections 44 to 47 of the Terrorism Act 2000 (with or without savings), articles 2 to 5 and Schedules 1 and 2 cease to have effect on the coming into force of such provision.

(2) Paragraph (1) is subject to any transitional, transitory or saving provision made by virtue of the Act so passed.

(3) An authorisation—

(a) given under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000, and

(b) whose duration would otherwise extend beyond the coming into force of this Order, ceases to have effect on the coming into force of this Order.

(4) An authorisation ceasing to have effect by virtue of paragraph (3) does not affect the lawfulness of anything done in reliance on it before it ceases to have effect.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Order)

In the case of Gillan and Quinton v United Kingdom (Application no.4158/05) the European Court of Human Rights found that there had been a violation of article 8 of the Convention on the grounds that the powers of authorisation and confirmation as well as the powers of stop and search under sections 44 to 47 of the Terrorism Act 2000 (“the 2000 Act”) are neither sufficiently circumscribed nor subject to adequate legal safeguards against abuse.

This Order modifies the effect of the 2000 Act by making a number of non-textual amendments. In particular, to remove the incompatibility of sections 44 to 47 of the 2000 Act with the Convention right, article 2 of the Order provides that the 2000 Act is to have effect as if the stop and search powers in sections 44 to 47 of that Act were repealed.

Article 3 of and Schedule 1 to the Order modify the 2000 Act so that it has effect as if new sections 47A to 47C and Schedule 6B were inserted into that Act. Those provisions provide the police with replacement powers of stop and search for the purposes of counter-terrorism. If a senior officer reasonably suspects that an act of terrorism will take place and considers that the stop and search powers are necessary to prevent such an act of terrorism, the senior officer may authorise the use of those powers in an area within the officer’s police force area no larger than necessary and for a period no longer than necessary for that purpose (and for a maximum of 14 days). Authorisations must be confirmed by the Secretary of State within 48 hours if they are to last beyond that period and the Secretary of State has the power to restrict the scope of authorisations. Where an authorisation is in place, an officer in uniform may stop and search a person or a vehicle to search for evidence that the person is a terrorist or that the vehicle is being used for purposes of terrorism, whether or not the officer reasonably suspects that such evidence will be present.

Article 4 of the Order requires the Secretary of State to issue a code of practice in connection with the exercise of the new powers.

Status: This is the original version (as it was originally made). This item of legislation is currently only available in its original format.

Article 5 of and Schedule 2 to the Order make various non-textual consequential amendments to other enactments, including the Police Reform Act 2002 and the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2003, which make provision for community support officers to have limited powers under the new stop and search powers.

The Order is made pursuant to the “urgency” procedure prescribed in paragraph 2(b) and 4 of Schedule 2 to the Human Rights Act 1998 and comes into force on 18th March 2011. The Order will cease to have effect if, at the end of the period of 120 days beginning with the day on which the Order was made (not including any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or both Houses are adjourned for more than four days), a resolution has not been passed by each House of Parliament approving the Order.

Article 6 of the Order provides for articles 2 to 5 of and Schedules 1 and 2 to the Order to cease to have effect if an Act that is passed in the same Session as that in which this Order is passed makes provision to repeal sections 44 to 47 of the 2000 Act. In that case, those provisions of the Order will cease to have effect on the coming into force of such provision. The Protection of Freedoms Bill contains similar provisions to those in the Order relating to powers of stop and search under the 2000 Act. In particular, the Bill includes provision to repeal sections 44 to 47 of the 2000 Act.

Article 6 also provides that any authorisation given under section 44 of the 2000 Act whose duration would otherwise extend beyond the coming into force of the Order ceases to have effect on the coming into force of the Order (that is, on 18th March 2011).
